III. Course Description and Objectives

In today's global organization, the effectiveness and overall success of today's leader and manager strongly depends on their ability to communicate effectively. Business Communication is a theory-based, practice-driven course that introduces students to a wide cross section of ideas, practices and principles to improve their existing communication.

The online course as a whole is designed to enable students to develop skills in empowering their authentic presence to build communicative effectiveness and influence with communication situations in day to day organizational contexts.

Through Zoom meetings, students will learn about and practice essential communicative skills through a range of exercises and assignments. Communication processes will focus more in depth with effective speaking and listening in conversation, non-verbal communication, conflict management, cross cultural and team communication, coaching, among other themes.

This entirely online course aims to introduce students to the skills to build effective, creative and meaningful communication in one on one, groups, teams and organizations. The course adopts innovative perspectives across different contexts of interpersonal and group communication.

Different approaches to generative and creative methods of communication will be explored throughout the course. Business communication theory explored in the course will be immediately applicable to students and set the stage for ongoing communication mastery throughout their professional lives.

Course Objectives

The online course as a whole, aims to:

- Provide students an understanding of the diverse contexts and processes of communication that are necessary to ensure professional and organizational performance.
- Offer students working theories for understanding effective communication across several business communication contexts.
- Provide students opportunities to practice and develop skill and confidence with business communication in different professional contexts.
- Introduce students to cutting-edge insights and theories on business communication to increase awareness and knowledge with communication developments.

The online course more specifically, aims to:

- Enable students to understand how to engage their speaking and listening as a toolset for communication mastery and influence
- Be aware of communication opportunities for influence within organizational culture
- Effectively interpret and proactively influence dynamics of conversation within organizations
- Discover conversation as a foundational leadership tool for empowering others and effecting positive change in organizations
- Recognize opportunities for potential applications of concepts and theories of communication in leadership contexts.

Instructional Approach

This course will emphasise a balance of theory and practice and use the following instructional and learning tools:
